And today's financial tip:

When I received my investor ID letter, it stated that my securities are held in a dematerialised environment, what does dematerialised mean?

The securities for all companies listed on the ECSE are held in a dematerialised form. This means that no certificate will be issued to the investors who hold these securities and the records held by the Eastern Caribbean Central Securities Registry are legal proof of ownership. However, each investor receives annual reports of their holdings and an activity statement is sent after any movement on their account.
