And today's financial tip:

What is meant by the rate of inflation?

A general increase in the price of goods and services in an economy is called inflation and the rate at which prices increase is the rate of inflation. This is measured on an annual basis by the Consumer Price Index and it gives you an idea of how much more things cost today compared to some previous year. For example, if the rate of inflation was about 3% every year between 1990 and 2005, then the same basket of groceries that cost $200.00 in 1990 would cost just over $300.00 today.
