And today's financial tip:

What are securities?

Securities are financial products or instruments issued by companies and governments to raise capital. They are generally classified into two main types: equity and debt. Equity, also called stock or shares, represents ownership in a company with specific rights, including the ability to share in the profits. The second type of security, debt, is a loan that investors make to an issuing company or government. The issuer gets the cash they need while the investors earn interest on the amount loaned, and the issuer must pay back the principal at a specified date in the future. The most common forms of debt securities are bonds, debentures and treasury bills.
